Western Michigan University
Fulbright Programs

Western Michigan University's Diether H. Haenicke Institute for Global Education appreciates the tremendous opportunities Fulbright Programs offer our students and faculty in two key areas:

- Enhancing personal and professional growth and development
- In developing as a United States national resource for the pursuit of peace and intercultural understanding. In a world that has become increasingly flat, this is more important now than ever, as individuals in remote corners of the world find themselves directly impacted by global interconnectedness for all the essentials of living.

For these reasons, WMU encourages and supports its students and faculty to study and conduct research abroad as worthy Fulbright ambassadors, and to, upon their return, make significant contributions to their academic and civic communities.

The Haenicke Institute also encourages and supports WMU faculty and academic units to invite scholars, professionals and other experts from abroad as visitors to enrich instructional strategies and research capabilities, both of which will contribute in important ways to the learning experiences of our students whom we desire to prepare for productive citizenship in a global society.

Finally, WMU plans to selectively host Fulbright Visiting Scholars from other U.S. institutions for the same enrichment objectives.

Act now to make a difference. Do yourself a favor; make the best of this open door to a vista of meaningful global citizenship.
